Why?

For many communities, having a position allocated to economic development is certainly a benefit. However, allocating in-house staff or hiring consultants on a project by project basis is expensive. As a service to its members, CAEP has developed the Roving Economic Development Officer (R-EDO) as a support on an as needed basis and as a pay-per-use service.

How does it work?

- Submit a proposal to access the R-EDO (for a sample Program Submission Form contact the CAEP office).
- The CAEP team reviews the proposal and meets with the member to discuss project.
- If eligible, an agreement is drafted and signed for the services.
- Project development/work planning meeting is held to identify roles, responsibilities and deliverables.
- Work will be completed according to the established timeline with ongoing contact between the member and the R-EDO.
